RAIN SWEEPS OHIO; STREAMS OVERFLOW AND FLOODS MENACE

Miami Valley Hit; People Flee From Lowlands

Rivermen watched streams throughout the state with anxiety today following a heavy rain storm which swept almost the entire state last night.

In central Ohio streets and cellars were flooded when sewers were inadequate to carry away the tremendous volume of water.

Rain began falling at dusk and a steady downpour, increasing in volume in some sections, continued until early this morning.

Although there is no immediate danger of floods, another day of rainfall would create a precarious situation, rivermen said.

The Muskingum was rising at Zanesville but there was no immediate danger River residents were fearing additional rainfall, however.

The Big Miami River at Hamilton went on a rampage today following a rainfall of 2.26 inches in twenty-four hours. Lowlands adjoining the river at Hamilton, called Peck's addition, was flooded and police using boats rescued about 150 residents.

The water rose rapidly and the call for help from the Peck's Addition families came at 5 a. m. Those taken from their homes were terror stricken.

A washout near Trenton caused interurban car service to be suspended between Hamilton and Middletown. Four Mile Creek, a tributary of the river, went out of its banks and covered a paved highway north of Hamilton for three fourths of a mile. This road thus barred to traffic effected chiefly the citizens of New Miami, a village just north of the creek.

Louisville, near north of the creek, a water shortage today when a downpour of rain submerged city water pumps under twenty-two feet of water, and extinguished fires in the furnace.

Mayor H. J. Kropf ordered all water service shut off and the city's reserve of 180,000 gallons can serve for fire protection.

Pumps were ordered from Canton to drain the pocket on top of a slight hill in which the water plant is located. No other part of the town was affected by the downpour of rain.

Inhabitants of the Little Miami River Valley between Cincinnati and Dayton were preparing today to evacuate their homes as the highest river stages in years were reported and as the flood waters continued to rise.

Railroad, bus and auto traffic was held up as the river inundated tracks and roads and in many cases transportation schedules had to be abandoned.

At Middletown the Big Miami was reported rising three inches an hour and already had risen eighteen feet, the greatest recorded rise in years.

Several homes in East Middletown already were flooded and it was feared families in the low sections of Upper Arlington and Highland would have to evacuate their homes.

"BIG BILL" MAKES LAST STAND

Lindbergh Visits With Morrows

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 26.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his bride-to-be reached the culmination of the courtship today in the idyllic surroundings of Cuernavaca, while the curious world seemed content for the time being to leave them undisturbed in their happiness.

The press was informed that the marriage of Lindbergh to Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, daughter of Dwight W. Morrow, United States ambassador to Mexico, would be announced in the proper manner and in "due time."

The Morrows and Lindbergh refused to discuss their plans, and with that the matter rested while Lindbergh and Miss Morrow enjoyed themselves amid the flowery, sunshine and scenic beauties of the famous Mexican resort.

Cuernavaca, forty miles south of the capital, is a romantic spot, ideal for a courtship or a honeymoon. It is built on a mountain spur, jutting into a valley, and is surrounded by garden lands and forest. Its altitude is 3,500 feet lower than the capital, and the climate is semitropical.

The young couple spent much time there on Lindbergh's last visit in November. The Morrow country home is a beautiful retreat. Its walled patio is filled with almost every variety of the luxuriant flowers of Mexico.

The engaged pair spent much of yesterday motoring in the hills outside the town, or in the patio of the Morrow home. When the Mexico City correspondents arrived to interview Lindbergh, he had been in the garden with the Morrow family.

Lindbergh was plainly happy, and exceptionally genial as he parried good-naturedly all attempts of the reporters to learn his plans.

His most specific statement was that Mexico is "a wonderful country that I enjoy more each visit."

"Ask me a little later," was his reply to all questions about the wedding. He indicated that "later" might mean only a few days, but he was not specific.

While enroute to Cuernavaca, the correspondents encountered the ambassador returning to Mexico City after a week end with his family. Asked about plans for the wedding, he said:

"Neither Col. Lindbergh nor the Morrows have anything to say. You fellows are wasting your time."

TYPICAL ELECTION TERROR PRACTICES MARK BALLOTING

Political Workers Receive Threats As Chicago Votes

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—Fighting to retain the last vestiges of his power—domination of the city council—"Big Bill" Thompson, the cowboy mayor, today made what may be his last stand before the voters of Chicago.

Harried by civic leagues, reform organizations and indignant business men, the mayor sent his lieutenants into virtually every ward to combat the threat of complete overthrow which has been gathering momentum since the St. Valentine's Day massacre of seven "Bugs" Moran gangsters brought Chicago again into prominence as a lawless city.

Leading up to the actual aldermanic balloting was the typical Chicago election day terrorism. Candidates and workers alike were kidnaped or warned that they would be "taken for rides" or their skulls cracked if they continued their political activities.

The "bloody twentieth" ward conditions were especially bad. Ald. A. J. Prignano, candidate for reelection, was forced to flee from his home and take his family with him to escape a bombing promised in telephone calls and telegrams.

Reports from other troublesome wards said that minor political workers were missing after receiving threats of violence, their families and friends fearing that they had been kidnaped.

From the unusually quiet Hyde Park district, only a few blocks from the University of Chicago, came reports that voters were being warned by telephone to stay away from the polls.

Police took elaborate precautions against violence as the polls opened. One policeman was assigned to each voting place and special squads were stationed in the "bad lands." An election court was opened in the loop to mete out quick justice to offenders.

The long standing opposition to Mayor Thompson was brought to white heat by the brazen machine gunning on St. Valentine's Day when seven men were lined up against a garage wall and executed with the precision of a Mexican firing squad.

"Crime has eloped with politics and is off on an unbridled honeymoon of corruption," is the way "Big Bill's" enemies sum up the Chicago situation. They gave the mayor a bad licking at the November elections, leaving him but few sympathetic officials outside the city council. Today they were determined to complete the job.

Only the most credulous observer could believe that crime could have reached such a powerful place in Chicago without the aid of public officials who could be bought. Most of this opposition blames directly on the administration that "Big Bill the Builder" brought into power.

Chicago is in such bad financial straits that bankers have declined to advance additional funds on tax warrants. Millions of dollars in graft has been uncovered in the city's sanitary district.

On top of this Chicago is looking forward to staging the biggest civic and industrial exposition since 1893, a new world's fair in 1933.

In only three of the fifty wards are aldermen running unopposed. In many of the forty-seven other wards the contests to determine whether Mayor Thompson shall retain or lose his small majority in the council are close.

DEATH TOLL REACHES 23; LITTLE VILLAGE WRECKED BY STORM

Rising Streams Further Threaten Stricken Sections; Troops Bring Aid; Report Fifty Are Injured

A new menace arose to confront sections of the south and southwest today, following tornadoes yesterday which killed at least twenty-three persons, injured three score more and did property damage of more than a million dollars.

The sluggish streams of the area are expected to leave their banks unless rainfall which continued this morning ceases by tonight. The streams were approaching the danger point and may add further damage to communities already suffering extensively.

Rain and brilliant electrical displays accompanied the storms which were felt over Mississippi, Tennessee, Arkansas and Texas. Mississippi bore the major part of the damage.

Duncan, Miss., on the western side of the state, near the Arkansas border, was almost wrecked. At least fifteen persons are dead there and more than fifty injured. Property damage of great extent was caused.

Memphis, Tenn., witnessed an electrical storm accompanied by high wind and heavy rain damage was slight. Arkansas reported wind and rain. Cooper, Tex., and Grand Prairie, Tex., were struck by tornadoes which left two dead in each place and several persons injured. Total damage in Texas is expected to reach a half million dollars. Two persons were killed at Van, Ark.

The storms apparently struck within a space of a few hours. High wind was continuing through the stricken areas today accompanied by rain. National Guard troops have been called out to aid Duncan.

The same storm that struck at Duncan and Van, Ark., also left

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 26.—Danger from flood and disease confronted communities of the tornado stricken mid-south today as relief crews renewed efforts to clear away debris.

The known death toll was placed at 19 with seven persons missing. More than a hundred persons were injured and property damage may exceed a million dollars.

The windstorm struck at Van, Ark., where two were killed, four injured and considerable damage done. It then skipped across the Mississippi River centering into Mississippi and leaving two more dead at Alligator.

The greatest death toll was at Duncan, little community about ninety miles south of here. Fifteen were killed and seven more are missing. Nearly every structure in the town suffered damage.

The list of identified dead at Duncan included three Chinese and two Negroes.

Eight of the ten brick structures in Duncan were leveled and fifty of the 150 residents were demolished. Extensive damage was done to fifty other buildings and the rest suffered to a less extent.

Almost every able-bodied man in the town was injured. Those who could join in the relief work which went on all last night by the light of torches and lanterns. Hastily summoned crews from neighboring villages did most of the work.

Debris was piled high through the town when dawn broke today. A company of National Guardsmen is enroute to aid in the work of clearance.

Emergency hospital bases thrown up shortly after the tornado struck reported a hundred persons treated for injuries.

About forty of the seriously injured were sent to hospitals at Clarksville and at Greenville.

A bright warm sun had come out over the ruins of Duncan today. It presented a pitiful spectacle as relatives searched through the ruins for a father, a mother, a son or daughter.

Last night the city power plant was destroyed and the rescue work was carried on virtually without lights.

The storm traveled northeastward with diminishing force after leaving Duncan, killing a negro, injuring three others in Quitman County and injuring an unknown number in Bolivar County.

Many farm buildings were razed and telephones and telegraph lines were still crippled early today.

Heavy rains accompanying the storm caused overflows of creeks and high water over roads in lowlands today.

IDENTIFY WOMAN IN CHARITY HOSPITAL

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 26.—A comb engraved with the initials "H. B." led today to the identification of a woman who has lain in Charity Hospital here for a month, unnamed.

The woman is Mrs. Harriet L. Bailey, 64, of Erie, Pa. How she got here and what became of two valuable diamond rings she was wearing when she left home remains a mystery.

Other questions police are attempting to answer is why she registered at a hotel here as "Mrs. Anne Williams of Pittsburgh," and why were marks which would aid in identification removed from her clothing and shoes.

Mrs. Bailey collapsed on Public Square here Jan. 24 and was picked up by a taxicab driver and taken to the hospital. When revived she could tell nothing about herself.

FOUR BILLS FACING GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION ON TUESDAY

Select Committees To Attend Rites For Late Senator

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 26.—Four bills of major importance were scheduled for action in the general assembly late today.

The senate has on its calendar the bill by Senator Walter G. Nickels, of New Philadelphia, to require all automobile drivers to have state licenses, and the bill by Senator Roy J. Gillen, Jackson County, to recodify the criminal procedure code.

Outstanding measure pending in the house are the "habitual criminal" bill by Rep. Virgil E. Cramer, Toledo, and the bill by Rep. J. T. Anderson, Canton, to permit municipalities to spend up to 50 per cent of their share of gasoline tax funds for street repaving.

Both the habitual criminal bill and the recodification of the criminal code were sponsored by the Ohio State Bar Association.

The house last night passed the bill by Senator Davis Johnson, Fulton County, to permit recovery of compensation from the county dog fund for poultry killed by dogs. The vote was seventy-one to twenty-five.

After passing the bill the house proceeded to reconsider this vote. When it was pointed out by Senator Ray Carpenter, Seneca County, that the bill did not do what the legislators intended it should. Then further action was postponed and the measure left pending on the house calendar. It may be brought up for final consideration today.

The bill by Rep. Charles McClave, Huron County to permit the appointment of county inspectors to combat foul brood among bees, was approved by the house by a vote of seventy-eight to ten. It now goes to the senate.

The senate and house both approved a resolution introduced by Senator Paul M. Hieber, Columbus, providing for appointment of a joint committee to attend the funeral tomorrow of the late Senator Harry M. Carpenter, of Steubenville.

TWO PERISH IN FLAMES AFTER CARS COLLIDE

Burned To Death When Pinned In Truck Wreck

FREMONT, O., Feb. 26.—Two Ada men were burned to death near here last night in a fire which followed a combination of traffic crashes.

The victims were L. C. Wahl, 25, son of K. M. Wahl, and Paul Clark, 19.

The two were burned to death when their truck—laden with eggs—crashed into a trailer which only a moment before had been thrown across the road by another machine.

Wahl and Clark were pinned in the seat of the truck which burst into flames.

Donald D. Card, 30, of Detroit, in charge of the truck and trailer, tried in vain to rescue the two men.

Wahl and Clark worked for the Wahl Produce Company of Ada of which Wahl's father is owner and manager. They were en route to Cleveland when the accident occurred.

Card said that just a moment before the crash a man in a large sedan sideswiped his trailer, throwing it across the road.

COUNTY STREAMS LEAVE BANKS; RAILROAD SERVICE DISRUPTED

A heavy rainstorm which lashed Xenia and Greene County Monday afternoon and night resulted in high water in various parts of the county and south of Springfield in particular where flood conditions prevailed, although no great damage was reported.

The lowlands south of this village were hardest hit by the downpour and the water at that point was the highest within the memory of the oldest residents, even including conditions which prevailed at the time of the 1913 flood, it was reported.

This condition was general in parts of the county where streams overflowed their banks. Throughout about fifteen families living in the lowlands gathered together their belongings and moved to a safer area in anticipation that their homes would be flooded by the rising water.

Lowlands in that vicinity known as "Ladies Green" were inundated over an area of about half a mile on both sides of the river, but no material property damage was reported. The Cincinnati and Xenia Pike was under about a foot of water south of the village over a stretch of 200 feet, but many autoists risked navigating the flooded portion.

The flooded conditions were attributed for the most part to water which backed over the ten-foot levee which protects the low district.

At New Burlington high water was also reported and the village was practically isolated for a time. All roads leading into the village except the main highway to Xenia were under about a foot of water. Five feet deep when Caesar's Creek and Anderson's Fork escaped their banks. The water was gradually receding, however, Tuesday morning and the roads were expected to be passable again by evening. None of the houses in the low area were flooded.

Summer cottages owned by Xenians north of Old Town along Massie's Creek, the mill race and the Little Miami River were flooded and could not be reached. All three streams overflowed and the area was converted into a large lake with water covering the floors in about every cottage. The water was the highest in history at that point, it was reported.

Xenians who own cottages in that vicinity include Dr. F. M. Chambliss, Clarence Fisher, Clara Poland, Miss Lorena Mansfield and the Canning cottage. Only the Chambliss cottage is occupied at present and Dr. and Mrs. Chambliss were forced to evacuate their home to escape being marooned by the high water.

Washouts near Trebeins and at the Factory Road disrupted interurban traction service on the Dayton-Xenia Railway Co. line early Tuesday morning for about two hours between 6 and 8 o'clock.

The Dayton-Xenia Pike was covered with water between Trebeins and Lucas hill, the lowlands proving a catch basin for about a foot of water.

DISPUTE OVER HUGE DRY APPROPRIATION REVIVED IN SENATE

Leaders, Organized To Sidetrack New Measure

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The old dispute between the senate and the house over whether the administration shall have $24,000,000 more to enforce prohibition next year was revived again in the senate today when Senator Harris, the dry Democrat of Georgia, proposed his $24,000,000 amendment to the senate appropriations committee.

Republican leaders have done some elaborate planning in an effort to sidetrack the amendment, thus saving the vital second deficiency appropriation bill from the same fate as the first deficiency bill now dead in conference because it bore the Harris appropriation.

The dries, too, are making extensive preparations to fight the issue out. Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, is considering a move to strike out all the first deficiency items from the second deficiency bill where they were placed by the house when every body agreed to forget about the first deficiency bill.

The appropriations committee is disposed now to turn Harris down. A majority of its members indicated they fear his amendment now would disrupt the whole appropriating system for the government because the house will never accept it.

Harris has prepared for such a defeat and has served notice in the senate he will move to suspend the rules in order to get consideration of his amendment on the floor.

While the situation appears more critical from Harris' standpoint, many changes are necessary among senators to reverse action of several weeks ago in favor of the $24,000,000 expenditure. The second deficiency bill contains only $2,985,000 increase for prohibition in accordance with the suggestion of President Coolidge and Secretary of Treasury Mellon.

While the senate is fighting out this question in the next few days the house will be preparing to consider the Jones bill passed recently by the senate, increasing maximum penalties for liquor law violators to five years imprisonment and $5,000 fine.

The senate is involved in a controversy over the reappropriation bill and a local district of Columbia market measure.

COMPANY OBTAINS OHIO COAL FIELDS

STEUBENVILLE, O., Feb. 26.—The Youghiogheny Ohio Coal Company today became the owner of 6,500 acres of coal land in Jefferson and Belmont Counties.

The company has been working the land for several years. It formerly was owned by the Glen Run Coal Company. More than half a million dollars was said to have been involved in the deal. The major portion of the land lies in southern Jefferson County.

COMMA CAUSES ARGUMENT IN HOUSE

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 26.—Comma ordinarily doesn't mean much, but the house of representatives devoted an hour last night to debating of a comma in an amendment to a bill for consideration.

The bill, by Senator Davis B. Johnson, Fulton County, was intended to permit the recovery of compensation from the county dog fund for poultry killed by marauding dogs. The senate had already passed the bill.

The present law provides for such compensation for a list of animals, including cattle, sheep and swine, and Johnson's bill was intended merely to add poultry to the list.

The senate, however, wrote in an amendment, and it was over this amendment and the effect of a comma in the amendment that the house wrangled.

Rep. Ray C. Carpenter, Seneca

County discovered the amendment while the house was voting on the bill. He changed his original "no" vote to "yes," and then after passage of the bill by a vote of 71 to 25, had been announced proceeded to ask for reconsideration.

The reason for this, Carpenter explained, was that the amendment provided that farmers could obtain compensation for dog-killed sheep only if the sheep were worth at least $15.

Advocates of the bill, including Rep. G. M. Fomey, Hancock County, and W. L. Guard, Champlain County, contended that the amendment didn't do this at all. It provided only that poultry so killed must be worth at least $15, and didn't apply to sheep at all, they said.

They argued that a comma in the amendment made this clear. Carpenter and others insisted that the comma wasn't placed in the proper place to give the bill the meaning intended by its advocates. "This is a case where no attention was paid to the amendments made by the senate," Carpenter declared. "The bill doesn't mean what it was intended to mean."

Representative Fomey rose in defense of the bill and the senate. "The bill went through the upper chamber all right, and the senators surely would have detected any mistake," he said.

This was greeted with a roar of laughter from the house, the members apparently failing to accept very seriously the idea of senate infallibility.

Another occasion for laughter was caused by Rep. Horace S. Keifer, Springfield, an opponent of the bill.

"There are no sheep-killing poultry in Ohio," Keifer declared, getting slightly mixed in his statements.

troubles started," said Mr. E. C. Cramer, West Austintown, a short distance from Youngstown, Ohio.
"Before I realized what was happening my stomach was really out of order. Constipation I could not get rid of except temporarily. Whatever I ate caused intense pain—so bad that, at times, I thought it would stop my heart. I could not sleep, became terribly nervous and was losing steadily in weight and strength. All I got from the medicines I tried was to become worse.

"But Konjola surely proved the victor in my case. Six bottles of this medicine completely restored my health. Konjola removed the causes of my trouble, then my stomach improved rapidly. My appetite increased and today, after six weeks of Konjola, I am better than I was six years ago. No recommendation of mine could do Konjola justice. I can understand why it is known as the medicine with more than a million friends." Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. # NOTHING TO WEAR

By Laird

Poor Flora McFlimsey, she had "nothing at all to wear." And since her time, all the women in the world have suffered the same tragedy. When HE comes and asks us to go with him, although we may have been preparing for his coming all our lives, we have "nothing to wear."

Nothing suitable, that is, because it is such a glorious occasion and we would be dressed "to the queen's taste" to meet it. No use reminding a woman in this case that King Cophetua married a beggar maid. We may secretly think we're lovely, but we haven't faith enough in our beauty to think we'd pass such a test.

It matters not whether we are of the genus working girl or the rich society debutante, it is the same problem.
"In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love," we know, so it is then we worry most about clothes.

PLAN PARADISE FOR PETTERS

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 26. — A "petters' paradise" where spooning can be enjoyed unrestricted and unhampered will be the lot of the romantic youth of the fifth city this summer following the sanctioning by city officials of the use of one of the public parks for that purpose.

For the sake of the uninitiated, spooning is more commonly known as love making.

This unique distinction and privilege was conferred on the youth of the city following a discussion in the legislature recently, on the censoring of talking pictures and other forms of amusement.

One of the militant solons declared that this city provides places where the young couples are permitted to "neck to their hearts' content."

City officials immediately rushed to the defense of the spooners declaring that the spot in question—

HOPE ABANDONED,
BUT NEW KONJOLA
BROUGHT HEALTH

For Six Years Ailments Baffled
And Defied All Efforts for Relief
—Then Came New Medicine

"I was about to abandon hope of ever getting rid of constipation and indigestion, when I discovered in Konjola the medicine I should have had six years ago, when my troubles started," said Mr. E. C. Cramer, West Austintown, a short distance from Youngstown, Ohio.

"Before I realized what was happening my stomach was totally out of order. Constipation I could not get rid of except temporarily. Whatever I ate caused intense pain—so bad that, at times, I thought it would stop my heart. I could not sleep, became terribly nervous and was losing steadily in weight and strength. All I got from the medicines I tried was to become worse.
"But Konjola surely proved the victor in my case. Six bottles of this medicine completely restored my health. Konjola removed the causes of my trouble, then my stomach improved rapidly. My appetite increased and today, after six weeks of Konjola, I am better than I was six years ago. No recommendation of mine could do Konjola justice. I can understand why it is known as the medicine with more than a million friends."
Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. It contains 22 juices extracted from natural plants, vigorize the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health thru this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.
Konjola is sold in Xenia at the Gallaher Drug Store, and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section. —Adv.

NOTHING TO WEAR

By Laird

Poor Flora McFlimsey, she had "nothing at all to wear." And since her time, all the women in the world have suffered the same tragedy. When HE comes and asks us to go with him, although we may have been preparing for his coming all our lives, we have "nothing to wear."

Nothing suitable, that is, because it is such a glorious occasion and we would be dressed "to the queen's taste" to meet it. No use reminding a woman in this case that King Cophetua married a beggar maid. We may secretly think we're lovely, but we haven't faith enough in our beauty to think we'd pass such a test.

It matters not whether we are of the genus working girl or the rich society debutante, it is the same problem.

"In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love," we know, so it is then we worry most about clothes.

PLAN PARADISE FOR PETTERS

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 26. — A "petters' paradise" where spooning can be enjoyed unrestricted and unhampered will be the lot of the romantic youth of the fifth city this summer following the sanctioning by city officials of the use of one of the public parks for that purpose.

For the sake of the uninitiated, spooning is more commonly known as love making.

This unique distinction and privilege was conferred on the youth of the city following a discussion in the legislature recently, on the censoring of talking pictures and other forms of amusement.

One of the militant solons declared that this city provides places where the young couples are permitted to "neck to their hearts' content."

City officials immediately rushed to the defense of the spooners declaring that the spot in question—

Edgewater Park — had proved "harmless" in other years and would continue uncensored during the coming summer.

"I wouldn't have a censor on the grounds for anything," Safety Director Edwin D. Barry said. "And I wouldn't have any persnipity chaparons on the lot either. They might spoil it all for the young couples who come there from all parts of the city."

CENTRAL COURT TEAM GUESTS AT DINNER.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stout entertained members of the Central High School basketball squad at dinner Monday night at their home on Hill St.

Aside from the athletes, Coach Walter L. "Pinky" Wilson, Assistant Coach Glen Patterson, Mr. J. D. Adair, president of the city school board, and John Little, manager of the team, were also guests at the affair.

The occasion was very informal and the guests were served a delicious four-course dinner with small pies distributed as favors. Short talks were also made by Coach Wilson, Assistant Coach Patterson and President Adair.

Xenia fans were highly complimented by Coach Wilson for the way the Buccaneers teams are supported. "I never heard of a town the size of Xenia which backs a high school team the way this city does," he said. "It is now up to the boys to give their best efforts to show their appreciation for this backing."

Mr. Adair gave a reminiscent talk, recalling basketball of yesterday in contrast with the game as it is played today.

The dinner for the court squad was to honor the team for its fine record this season and to stimulate enthusiasm for the final game against Dayton Stivers Tuesday night.

All members of the squad were present except John Schleppl and Paul Weaver. Others there were: John Gihney, Joe Smittle, Bircia Bell, Ralph Scurry, Robert Buell, John Hurley, Edgar Michael and Lester Price.

The Victoria Trio, of which Miss Lois Street is a member, played Monday evening at the dinner meeting of the Dayton Retail Merchants Association, in the Rike-Kumler dining room, Dayton.

Xenia Lodge No. 52, I. O. O. F., will hold its regular meeting Tuesday evening, at 7 o'clock. All members are requested to be present and on time. A degree will be conferred by Gem City Lodge, Dayton, O.

There's a way to keep your hair just-so, without any of that objectionable, "plastered-down" look. Just use a few drops of Danderine—comb it through hair, or use a Danderine-dampened towel—will be amazed at the way your hair then behaves, and its beautiful luster!

Any permanent wave or water wave lasts much longer and looks much nicer when Danderine is used instead of water to "set" the wave.

Of course, you know what Danderine does to dandruff! Dissolves every bit of it. Puts scalp in the pink of condition. Invigorates hair and hair-roots. Why use anything else?

YELLOW SPRING S WATER SUPPLY THREATENED BY FLOOD WATERS

Yellow Springs residents face the prospect of being without a water supply within the next twenty-four hours.

Due to the heavy rainstorm, flood waters early Tuesday morning were four feet deep at the waterworks pumping station and all the water available is in the standpipe, which is reported to contain only sufficient water for a day's supply.

It is not believed possible that the water will have receded sufficiently and the machinery repaired in time to permit pumping of water before two or three days. The electric light service had not been disrupted by the brooklet, Pole Cat Run, north of the village, has overflowed over an area

WEISS AND WEAD DROP DRY GOODS

Announcement was made Tuesday that due to the dry goods business slump which has hit several small town department stores during the last year, the Weiss and Wead department store in Yellow Springs has decided to discontinue handling that line of goods.

If present plans are carried out, the room now occupied by the department store will be fitted up with another line, and the store plans to handle grocery business only.

Bilious child suffers agony.

No more headaches and sickness.

Save your child from spitting headache and prostrating sickness. If the tongue is coated and breath unpleasant, it is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with constipated waste. Simply give a dose of "California Fig Syrup," and shortly after all the sour, irritating bile and fermenting undigested food will be moved from the bowels, leaving the system clean and sweet, and the child bright and strong.

"California Fig Syrup" suits child's system better than any harsh purging medicine, and they love its delicious taste.

There are many imitations of California Fig Syrup. To be sure of getting the genuine, look for the name "California" on the package. —Adv.

Speedy Relief for Sore Throat

Now you can get almost instant relief with one swallow of a famous doctor's prescription called Thoxine. It has a double action, relieves the soreness and goes direct to the internal cause not reached by gargles, salves and patent medicines.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief as effectively as the messy old mustard plaster.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

SCOUTS ENJOY HIKE TO YELLOW SPRINGS

Tired but happy, Troop No. 45, Boy Scouts of America, returned to Xenia Saturday after enjoying its annual overnight hike and camp at Camp Miami, Scout camp at Yellow Springs.

The troop left Xenia from the Scout cabin at 1 p. m. Friday. The party included twenty-eight boys from the O. S. and S. O. Home, guests of the troop.

The overnight hike was arranged by the troop committee to take the place of the annual Washington's Birthday party and enabled members of the troop to advance in their tests.

S. M. Blackburn and C. F. Melage, of the troop committee, had charge of the boys on the trip.

ROTARIANS ATTEND "SCHOOL" TUESDAY

Rotarians went to school Tuesday noon at their luncheon meeting at the Elks' Club, members being examined on the principles of Rotary by Louis Hammerle and the Rev. H. B. McElree.

Members made out examination papers by numbers and the papers were graded on a grade sheet on the wall. The examination was conducted in the nature of a contest among members. Discussion followed.

Coach Walter L. Wilson of Central High School will address next week's meeting on "Basketball," explaining finer points of the game.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE SOURCE OF GREED—Woe unto him that buildeth his house by unrighteousness, and his chambers by wrong; that useth his neighbor's service without wage, and giveth him not for his work.—Jeremiah 22:13.

NO TRAFFIC JAMS IN AIR

Improvements on a new English airplane should make flying easy. A flight once started is almost automatic. With a course set, the pilot may doze off without fear of mishap. Steering devices will ring if he deviates from his direction or altitude. The plane is self-balancing. In calm air, at least, there is nothing to fear as long as one is moving at a safe height.

This is the sort of thing calculated to promote flying among people in general. The time will probably never come when everyone who can drive an automobile will be capable of piloting an airplane. Yet great numbers of people will fly, and those who do will doubtless be as safe in the air as the others are on land. In some respects they will be safer. They will have more room, fewer traffic jams and fewer accidents caused by other people.

"HIGHER EDUCATION"

Beer-drinking before the war was the greatest indoor sport of German university students. With them, in fact, it seemed to take the place of outdoor sport. It was also a substitute for duelling. "Corps" and "Verbindung," corresponding to the American college fraternity, drank for sociability and glory. Great was the fame of the mightiest beer drinker in his crowd.

That practice was supposed to have passed with the war. Now it is revived in the New World. Beer drinking contests are said to be the vogue in McGill University, Montreal. Every Saturday night there are "inter-departmental and inter-fraternity meets." The champion drinker holds a record of 14 quarts in six hours.

Enough beer has been drunk in these contests to drown a navy, the students say. And with the progress of this sport, other sports suffer.

American students may look on with envy. Circumstances make emulation a bit difficult on this side of the border. And it may be just as well. It may be, too, that there is something to be said, after all, for the athletic zeal in our colleges.

PRESERVING HISTORICAL RELICS

It is good news that the site of George Washington's birthplace is to be made a national shrine. Nearly 400 acres of the Wakefield property which consists of woodland and cultivated fields fronting the Potomac river in Westmoreland county, Virginia, are now controlled by the Wakefield National Memorial Association, Inc. It is planned to rebuild the mansion in which Washington was born and to make of the estate another authentic memorial such as Mount Vernon is now.

Little by little this country is rescuing and preserving for the public its choice historical relics. For a long while our people were so busy pioneering and growing that they had little time to think of their past or preserve the places so intimately connected with their early life. Now this indifference is turning to practical interest.

THE MIDDLE COURSE
It is always tempting to be an extremist. If you take an extreme, uncompromising position you will attract more attention, you will get more fun out of life. For instance, hereditarians tell us, is the primary thing that determines the difference between men. So our hereditarian and goes about proclaiming that environment can't make any difference, that environment can't do anything for boy or girl, man or woman. That may make an interesting speech but undoubtedly the truth lies between the two. It is a situation of compromise. Hereditarianism is an environment in the making. The scientists seem to have the evidence to prove that hereditarian is the principal factor. There is no substitute for it, but it is not a field for extremists and for radicals.

NOT BEING AFRAID

No matter how much courage we have or say we have, there is no escaping the fact that we live in a very real and practical world. We live in a world where dreadful things happen. We are subject to all the pains the disasters, and the tragedies of life. No amount of thought, prayer, or right living is going to save us from the operation of natural law. No amount of faith and hope is going to keep some of us from getting drowned or run over by a motor car. But this is no reason why we should not go forward without fear. Fear only makes us miserable and does nothing to prevent disaster or allay tragedy. Even if we know we face tragedy, an attitude of courage makes us happier. There is nothing quite so good and so satisfying in all this life as just going on in the sublime certainty that nothing is too great to endure. If it is too great to endure, it kills, and that, of course, is complete relief from the situation. Death at least provides an interesting change. And if we have, in the high road of this world proceeded to the best of our capacity, we have every reason to believe that death is a promotion.

WHERE ARE YOU GOING?

In eight generations the descendants of the 103 persons who came over on the Mayflower numbered many thousands. It has been said that at the present birth rate among the higher ranks, among those whom we credit as coming from the best stock in America, it will be possible in one generation to put all the descendants of the Mayflower Pilgrims in one boat and send them home.

If anybody asks you where we are going, you may answer that, some at least are going out. It is interesting to speculate as to who will be the leaders of this democracy in a few hundred years—if there is any democracy.

PROHIBITION HYPOCRISY

PLAYED

By JAMES A. REED

Senator from Missouri

James A. Reed was born at Mansfield, O., Nov. 9, 1861. He was educated in the district schools of Lynn county, Iowa, followed by a special course at Coe college. He studied in law office at Cedar Rapids and was admitted to the bar in 1885. Two years later he moved to Kansas City, Mo., and has been actively identified with local and state and national Democratic politics since 1888. From 1898 to 1900 he was prosecuting attorney of Jackson county and for two terms was mayor of Kansas City. He was elected United States senator in 1911 and is now concluding his third term which expires in 1929. Reed was a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1928.

If it is not the case today it will not be many years before the conscience of the American people will be awakened to the fact that the prohibitory law was the worst crime that was ever committed when the reign of hypocrisy and cant will come to an ignominious end.

The day will come in this country when organized gangs will no longer conduct the government but the voice of the people will be heard pronouncing the knell of those who have yielded to them.

The man who would vote to send his fellow man to jail for bringing him a drink is a coward, a knavish and contemptible coward.

I have a contempt that cannot be expressed in any tongue ever known to man for a man who will vote to make a felony of that which he practices in his private and personal life.

I am sometimes tempted to write a list of those who vote dry and drink wet and I am not sure that I may not do it yet.

To say that this law has ever been enforced is to stand in the face of the truth and to deliberately lie to the American people. The arrests that are made are of those who do not pay the bribe.

Respect for law and respect for government is impaired and destroyed by the graft among police officials.

In a little while there is a coalition between the different classes of lawbreakers, and who

CONCERNING A CERTAIN "WARM DATE"—

How to Achieve Beauty

BY NINE HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Do not be afraid of "make-up." You need not be. The art of using good cosmetics correctly has its place in beauty's chain as a protection and as a clever supplement of the natural beauty of a healthy skin, which, of course, should always be cultivated first.

The purpose of make-up is to heighten and accentuate your personality, not to conceal the lack of it. It is to disguise your features into a poor imitation of someone else. The more demands art in make-up, which implies a sense of fitness, of suitability, both to your special type and to the occasion for which you are making ready.

The first principle of make-up is the need of a healthy, whole, some background for it. No powder and rouge, however skillfully applied, can conceal the presence of open pores, lines, sagging muscles, or other skin imperfections. Therefore, you must cultivate the health and beauty of the skin before expecting to use cosmetics with success.

Select your rouge carefully. Cream rouge is better for the average skin than either a powder or a liquid rouge. Choose the shade which brings out to best advantage the lights in your eyes and the glints in your hair. Generally speaking, the light rouges or the bright rouges become darker shades of brown. The darker shades of brown, if you follow nature perfectly, pinch your cheek or stimulate the skin with a stimulating tonic until you can see clearly the color you would naturally have and what

When your make-up is complete, study your profile in a mirror. If you detect any suggestion of harshness—if you appear older or too sophisticated, tone down your make-up. Make it less vivid and softer. For the old woman especially, it is much wiser to err on the side of softness than of vividness in making up her face.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON. — John Hays Hammond, I notice, was a recent caller on President-elect Hoover. In fact, I have noticed Mr. Hammond mentioned as a caller on Mr. Hoover several times recently.

To be mentioned as having been received even once by the president-elect is a great distinction, to say nothing of being so mentioned repeatedly.

To me, the very casualness of these references to Mr. Hammond's calls on Mr. Hoover was what made them especially noteworthy. Generally there is a lot of speculation concerning the business of any caller whom the president-elect admits to see him. It seems to be the consensus of political opinion that Mr. Hammond has no particular business with Mr. Hoover; that his calls are purely social.

In its literal sense, I would guess that this judgment is absolutely correct. I can hardly imagine a man less likely than John Hays Hammond to want anything from the next national administration, for himself or for anyone else.

Yet we must bear in mind that a president-elect has mighty little time for mere small talk.

It follows that he must consider those personal friends exceedingly well worth while whom he can remain on visiting terms an officer is called upon to act against a serious law-breaker he finds himself confronted by a man in whose pay he is.

Thus prohibition is a breeding place of lawlessness.

Today's Recipes

Bran Muffins—One and one-fourth cups white flour, one and one-fourth cups bran, one tablespoon brown sugar, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon shortening, one teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon baking soda in one-fourth cup hot water, one cup sour milk or buttermilk. You can mix muffins at night except for putting in the wet materials. Pans may also be greased at night so muffins are baked very quickly in the morning.

Prune Whip—Twenty large, cooked prunes, stoned, two tablespoons sugar and whites of two eggs beaten to a stiff froth. Mix all together carefully and after putting in a baking dish, bake in a slow oven about two minutes. Put in the oven just as you are sitting down to dinner, and at dessert time you will have a beautifully browned and fluffy whip ready for serving with cream.

PRACTICAL AND ECONOMICAL
One Egg Cake
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

Three tablespoons fat, one-half cup sugar, one egg, one-half cup milk, one and one-half cups flour, two and one-half teaspoons baking powder. Cream butter, add sugar gradually and egg, add beaten. Mix and sift flour and baking powder, add alternately with milk to first mixture. Bake about 30 minutes. This may be varied as loaf cake or layers. It may also be varied by using one of the following: One teaspoon vanilla, one-half cup currants, spices, seeded, chopped raisins, spices, cocoa, coconut, nuts, two egg whites or two egg yolks instead of the whole egg, or various frostings.

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D., AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

Too Old to Reduce

"Dear Doctor Lulu: I want to tell you how happy I am. I am 60 years old, 5 feet 1 1/2 inches tall, and eight months ago weighed 225 pounds, but I have lost 35 pounds. I used to be so tired and weak and lost my breath so easily, but thanks to you I have never felt better in my life than I do now."

"I go on one liquid diet day a week which I find helps greatly. I don't exercise outside of my housework and a little gardening. I do wish the lady who wrote that she was 54 and thought she was too old to reduce, could know my experience. I am going to continue, for I have a lot to lose yet."

One is never too old to reduce, if it is necessary. Only good can result if it is done scientifically. Yes, you do have a good deal to lose yet, Mrs. A.—about 70 pounds—but even at one pound a week, the slow rate at which you are going, you will be normal in less than a year and one-half.

Your one low-calorie day a week is a good plan. A still better plan is to always have a low-calorie day follow a too high calorie day.

Thanks ever so much for your encouraging letter.

(The instructions Mrs. A. is following are contained in a pamphlet on the subject, which you may have by following column rules.

Inflammation of the Finger Nails
Mrs. F.—You have some sort of infection around your finger nails and you should treat them two or three times a day. It might be a type of ringworm (which is a fungus growth), or an infection from some pus germs. If you cannot see a specialist, try washing them morning and night in as hot water as you can bear, to which one teaspoonful of lysol has been added. Then you must keep them bandaged.

If there is pus, you should keep a wet dressing on them. You can use a boric acid solution—one teaspoonful to the pint. If it is not a pus infection, some simple ointment such as ichthylol can be used. The chief point to remember is the bathing and the application of the solution or ointment at least twice daily, and to keep them constantly clean until they are healed.

You should have a physical examination because sometimes trouble with the nails may be a symptom of some general disorder.

F.—Ears that constantly discharge pus certainly have some severe infection, and if you do not attend to it right away, it may affect the ear drum and you may become deaf; or the infection may extend to the mastoid back of the ear and have a mastoid abscess, or even worse. Chronically discharging ears must have daily attention for long time. In some cases the extra-violet ray is effective in clearing it up; other cases, douching with antiseptics which an ear specialist should advise you about.

Mrs. K.—Excessive perspiration means some disturbance of the nerve control of the sweat glands from some toxemia (poison in the blood). You should have a physical examination and check-up to see why you have this toxemia.

Editor's Note: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and 2 cents in coin for each article, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining weight, 10 cents in coin, with fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

This petting stuff certainly has the girls "up in the air" these days. They are torn between a desire to be popular and a very natural antipathy to being "mauled," as they graphically put it. It has the boys guessing, too, for they do not know what they take a girl out, whether she expects to be treated affectionately and will think him a "flat tire" if he doesn't or whether she will be indignant if he attempts any familiarities.

One thing I insist on, and that is that the better class of young people are "going steady." "Petting" and "necking," and that the pendulum is bound to swing the other way ere long.

"MY DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a girl 24 years of age, fairly good looking, could pass for 18. I am lonely and discouraged. Perhaps you can give me a bit of advice, as you have given many other girls. This is my problem: I am a high school graduate and have done three years of college work. I am an accomplished pianist and teacher of piano. I get enough beaux but can't keep them. I am not a fine conversationalist, but can carry on an ordinary conversation, as I read the magazines every week, so keep up with current events. I had one beau whom I considered a gentleman, but found out differently. He took me to see a show one evening, and, after seeing me home, when I said goodnight to him, made advances which displeased me. I told him that I was not the type to do such things. He admitted that was right. He never apologized. I never saw him again except when I happened to meet him on the street, then I gave him a polite 'how do you do' and continued on my way.

"I had another beau with whom I had some trouble. Now I'm all alone. There are moments when I become so blue that I feel as though I'll go insane. What shall I do? If I were 'wild' I could have all the beaux I wanted. Does

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a single woman 33 years old and met a man a few months ago and have been going places with him. He and his wife are separated and she and her daughter are out of the city. Neither have sued for divorce, and he never says anything about wanting one. My sister tells me people will have a poor opinion of me going out with a married man, and that nine out of ten men will choose their own wives before the other woman. Friends of this man have told me he was very devoted to his wife, but he never talks about it, and I hate to ask questions. Please give me your honest opinion and advice, for I surely need it."

"BETTY."

I certainly think you should know how matters stand with your friend, Betty. People will talk. There is no doubt about that. But it is hardly fair to you that he should enjoy your companionship without giving you some idea as to where he stands. You might grow to love him and then find he was merely relying on your friendship until things straightened out with his family. It is embarrassing to know, for you to broach the subject, but it is only right for you to do so, and that he should be frank with you.

never fly together again!"

Miss Parrot stopped talking and commenced to sniffle again.

"But you haven't flown together in a long, long time, so I wouldn't worry about that," suggested the boy, gently, and at his words Miss Parrot looked up and wiped away her tears.

"That is so, we haven't," agreed she. "It makes me cry, though, to think that we might have."

"But what made Polly fall to the ground?" asked the boy, curious to hear Miss Parrot's side of the story, for not yet was he quite certain that his Poll and her cousin were the same.

"To tell the truth I never quite knew," replied his companion, sadly. "Polly and I had been having great fun. We had played hide and seek—she would hide behind a branch and I would search the trees over until I found her."

"Say, you ought to have seen us play tag! I would hop upon a tree trunk and call 'ready' and Poll would come after me and try her best to catch me."

"Around and around and up and down I would go, and if she but so much as touched the tips of my tail with her beak it was dear, oh dear! Cousin and I can my turn to be it."

"You see Polly and I had been out playing all the morning. Parrot, as you probably know, just love to run and hop and crawl, but it is hard work for some of us to fly, though when we really learn to, our flight is strong and rapid."

"To be a Carolina Parrot is nothing to be ashamed of, I can tell you. Some people say that Parrots can't fly at all. Don't you believe them. We can. Well, anyhow, Cousin Polly and I were just nestlings then, and the day on which the accident happened was almost the first one on which we had dared to go off by ourselves and try our wings. Oh, dear, oh dear! Cousin and I can never fly together again!"

MISS PARROT STOPPED TALKING and commenced to sniffle again.

"But you haven't flown together in a long, long time, so I wouldn't worry about that," suggested the boy, gently, and at his words Miss Parrot looked up and wiped away her tears.

O'DOWD WINS TITLE

A terrific right stab split the evening air in Brooklyn, N. Y., on November 14, 1927. The first crashed against a champ's stomach and was followed by a flashing left hook to the jaw. Al McCoy, Coy, middleweight champion of the world and recipient of the blows, spun crazily on his toes and then dropped to the canvas, knocked out.

Over him stood, perspiring and panting, Mike O'Dowd, the St. Paul sensation. Ten seconds later Mike was champion.

So ended in the sixth round one of the most exciting title battles metropolitan flistic fans have ever seen.

O'Dowd's bull-like rushes from the first bell had McCoy on the go. Al tried to crowd the challenger, but Mike's blocky arms smashed him back in each round.

Four times in the fourth round McCoy sprawled to the canvas, but he got up each time.

In the fifth O'Dowd cracked McCoy with a right hand to the chin. The champ staggered, dropped and came up to clinch as the bell rang.

In the sixth Mike stepped from his corner. Crash! Bang! Thud!

The King is kayoed, long live the King!

CEDARVILLE GIRLS LOSE SECOND GAME

Cedarville College girls' basketball team lost its second game of the season at Cedarville Monday night, bowing to the Jacamar feminine cage team of Springfield by a one-point margin, 22 to 21 in one of the most exciting games of the season.

The contest was played as a preliminary to the Cedarville-Wilberforce tilt.

During the course of the game the score was tied seven times so evenly were the rival quintets matched. The tie was broken at last when a member of the visiting team shot a foul for the winning point after the final gun cracked. Billie Ulen of the Jacamar quintet starred. Murphy also played well.

Xenia Draws Stivers For First Tourney Game

MEETS STIFFEST FOE IN OPENER OF SECTIONAL GAMES FRIDAY

Fourteen Class A Teams Compete At Springfield; Bellbrook, Spring Valley, Bath Twp. And Xenia East In Class B

By PHIL FRAME

As luck would have it, Xenia Central High basketball team will oppose the great Dayton Stivers High in the first round of the sectional Southwestern Ohio basketball tournament at Memorial Hall in Springfield.

The game will be played at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. The winner of the Xenia-Stivers tilt will clash with the winner of the Bellefontaine-Fairview game in the second round at 3:45 p. m. Saturday.

Representatives of the various contending teams voted against the "seeding" process which prevailed last year, Xenia and Stivers being exceptions. They favored the idea.

Fourteen teams will compete in the Class A division with twenty-six teams in the Class B group.

The fact Xenia was slated to draw Stivers in the opening round has its good points and of course, bad points. It means that the Bucs which meet Stivers in a regularly scheduled game at Dayton Tuesday night, will have another crack at this great team in the journey. But it also means possible early elimination as Stivers is the tourney favorite.

The drawings were held Monday afternoon at Springfield when representatives of the forty competing schools held a meeting.

Greene County will have four representatives in the Class B division. Bellbrook, runnerup in the county tourney, meets North Hampton, Clark County champs, in the first round at 9:50 a. m. Friday, Springfield, winner of the county tourney, faces Rushsylvania at 11:40 a. m. Friday; Bath Twp. clashes with Pleasant Hill at 5:35 p. m. ## CEDARVILLE REGISTERS 35 TO 29 WIN OVER WILBERFORCE TEAM

Rising to unexpected heights, Cedarville College's basketball team wound up its 1928-29 season in a triumphal manner by defeating Wilberforce University basketball team 35 to 29 in a thrilling game at Alford memorial gymnasium Monday night.

The victory avenged a previous 34 to 23 setback inflicted by Wilberforce and climaxed a season which was productive of eight victories and thirteen defeats in twenty one games against major college foes.

The score was tied at least five times during the contest and the "Yellow-Jackets," after holding a 17 to 16 advantage at the half, finally pulled away in the last half to a six-point win.

Turner and Allen, Cedarville forwards, were hitting the net with regularity, the former making fourteen points and the latter, nine. Gibbs was the big noise for Wilberforce with four baskets, followed by Carter with three. Line-

GARDEN CLUB HOLDS FIRST MEETING OF YEAR MONDAY NIGHT

The Xenia Garden Club held its first meeting of 1929 at the home of the president, Mrs. Charles A. Kelble Monday evening. There were thirty-five members present.

During the evening, last year's notes were read and they showed that in 1928 there were six hundred and eighty-four members in the club and most of the time and money was spent in beautifying Shawnee Park.

At the meeting it was decided that the annual spring sale of plants will be held sometime in April. B. H. Slagle was appointed chairman of the flower show committee, to be held in Shawnee Park auditorium Labor Day.

The National Garden Association is asking the garden clubs of each town and city to select a flower to be known as the "National Flower", and the Xenia club submitted the goldenrod.

It was also planned to interest schools this year and arrange for talks to be given throughout the year on "Helping to Keep Xenia Beautiful."

There are now 100 memory and honor trees planted in the park and the club is planning to plant many more, it was reported at the meeting.

A vote of thanks was extended to City Manager S. O. Hale for his interest and cooperation in this work, and praise was also given to P. H. Zell, city auditor, for the beautification of the Xenia Water Works.

The club will appreciate any suggestions concerning the beautification of the city.

SCOUT NEWS

Troop No. 45, Boy Scouts of America, will hold its regular meeting at the Scout cabin Friday night and members are looking forward to hearing reports concerning their recent trip to Camp Miami.

All patrol leaders are urged to have a full patrol attendance as plans for spring activities will be discussed.

AUDIENCE IS GIVEN LAUGH; WHAT MORE COULD ANYONE ASK?

Well, here we are again holding the pointer and tapping the desk for silence.

There are certain women in everyone's life who you remember forever and a day, so to speak. Therefore the memory of "See You Later," billed as a hilarious musical comedy in three acts, produced by local amateur talent under auspices of the American Legion Auxiliary at City Hall Theater Monday night, promises to linger for a long time for various reasons in the minds of those who witnessed the show.

Hilarious is an adjective at which we are apt to crawl under the table. Nevertheless, the play in some respects was hilariously funny when the acting was good, more hilarious when it was indifferent and most hilarious when it was bad.

Not that "See You Later" was without its weaknesses. It had them, and moreover, they were glaring. But all in all it was comical entertainment. The audience was there to be amused no matter how this object was brought about and the spectators seemed to derive the maximum of pleasure from the offering which is after all what counts in the end.

When the show began to falter, which it did on more than one occasion, it was practically always lifted out of the doldrums by the timely appearance of Miss Mildred Mason, Arthur Hyman, Bob Owens, Archer Maxwell, John Sutton and several others. The play even with very much alive and kicking and rather good entertainment.

Although a musical comedy, there is a great deal of plot to be followed so that you have to keep your wits about you. The story, though somewhat of a mixture, is at least original enough to keep a person guessing what the outcome will be.

In some ways, however, the production was a thoroughly enjoyable absurdity. While the list of players reads like a page from "Who's Who in the Local Amateur World," the nature of the casting offered opportunities for outstanding individual performances that were made the most of.

This was especially evident in the case of Bob Owens as "Jeff," a clever negro character, and Miss Mildred Mason, as "Speedy," a smart alec office boy. Honors must go to them for superior performances in circus clowning roles.

Art Hyman ran a close second as "Solle Goldstein," and proved himself admirably suited for this comedy role. It was a disappointment that so little was entrusted to Archie Maxwell, as "Mr. Milrox," a New York millionaire, who can be funny without half trying.

John Collins did well as "Donald McKay," a young business man and displayed a good voice; Percy Chambliss was suitable as "Percy Vere," a snipehead Englishman, while the Misses Helen and Esther Ford played capably their respective parts as "Mary Milrox" and "Sally Forth," a frivolous creature.

Miss Edna Dailey gave a straight-forward performance of "Maybelle Knott," a chewing gum stenographer, while John Sutton gave a ludicrous exhibition as "Neville Spotsom," a conceited detective.

There were three voices in the show, possessed by Miss Helen Ford, John Collins and Bob Owens.

Between acts the audience was entertained with specialty numbers. Elwood Smith and Charles McPherson, blackface comedians, offered jokes and bits of dancing, while Miss Mason and Bob Owens gave popular song hits which were well received.

The various choruses also contributed a good share to the entertainment. Following is the group personnel: work chorus—Marjorie Clark, Betty Rose Baldwin, Marjorie Snyder, Elizabeth Hutton, Margaret Clark, Marion Derrick, Susanne Guyton and Dorothy Jeffries.

Mary, Sally Chorus—Marguerite Reigle, Fern Bone, Evelyn Ary, Virginia Cross, Bob Griffith and Phil Sutton.

Broom Girls—Marjorie Morgan, Helen Jane Shaffer, Jessella Doggett, Kathryn Mutersaw, Genevieve Fuller, Ruth Turnbull, Marilyn Wilson, Janet Hamilton and Enid Ellis; romper chorus—Marjorie Powell, Margaret Clark, Cora Alice Powell, Evelyn Lampert, Della Lampert and Mabel Smith; Only, Only One Chorus—Marguerite Reigle, Fern Bone, Evelyn Ary, Virginia Cross, Bob Griffith, Phil Sutton, Roger Chambliss and John "Home" Bell.

The musical numbers included: "Goodbye Work," "This is Mary, This is Sally," "See You Later," "Sweep Your Troubles Away," "You're in Love and I'm in Love," "Girl of My Dreams," "No One Knows," "Old Man Sunshine," "Only, Only," "Miss Quince Jones," "Dreams," "The Dunselow of the variety stage."

A fine pit orchestra was furnished by Prof. H. E. Seall and played under his direction, contributing more than ordinarily to the entertainment.

READ THIS FIRST:

Betty Brown takes up dancing to make her more attractive to men. She has a small success in local entertainments, and gets many admirers as a result. Her parents die, leaving her without money. She takes up dancing professionally, and gets work in a moving picture house. During her trouble all her men friends seem to forget her except George Harris, a serious-minded boy who lived next door in the old days. The first night she dances at the moving picture house Andy Adair, a rich man's son, renews their acquaintance by waiting at the stage entrance for her. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIII

Andy Adair came for Betty again on Tuesday night after the show, insisting that she go with him to a night club for dancing and something to eat. She enjoyed dancing with Andy and protested only feebly when he begged that they stay till the place closed at three o'clock. He kissed her again as he left her at her door.

Wednesday night the stage manager said: "Rehearsal at eleven tomorrow morning, Brown. Next week's stuff."

Betty was pleased, but tried not to show how much. She felt that if she acted as though she were a permanent at the theater he would also consider her so.

When they were all gathered on the stage Thursday morning he appeared with his script in his hand. "Comedy next week," he announced. "Brown, ever do Greek?"

"Yes."

"Get a costume?" "Yes," Betty was frightened, for she did not care for Greek dancing and had taken it only because it was a part of the day's work at Selkoff's.

"Can you clown it?" "I'm afraid I don't know what you mean," she said.

"Ecceentric hooper coming here next week who clowns Greek dancing. Nut, you know, Chases June bugs and all that. Wants a woman to work with him. She's got to know it well enough to clown it."

"Oh, yes, I can do that!" she laughed, getting his meaning.

"That's all for you. Meet him here Sunday morning at ten. Be on time, for he will likely show at eleven!" He waved her off the stage, and Betty went home to practice before her mirror an exaggerated Greek dance with the hope that she might please the visiting dancer.

She was on hand before ten o'clock on Sunday morning, more anxious than she had ever been. She was now to work as a dancing partner for a professional!

At exactly ten a sad-faced young man arrived on the stage and looked around. She was the only woman in sight, so he came over to her.

"I am Ted Hawkins, the dancer," said he. "You going to work for me?"

"Yes, Mr. Hawkins. I have heard of you so often, I hope I can please you."

"See me with 'The Stupidities'?" I certainly killed 'em with that show, didn't I?"

"I'm sure you did! I know you are wonderful!" Betty saw he was an egoist, and tried to please him.

"In my new act I use some of the same stuff which made me famous with 'The Stupidities'. All you have to do is just the regular Greek stuff, not too good, see? Stumble once in a while, and when you pose, do it awkwardly. Don't try to be funny, for I am the act, see. I don't want their attention distracted from my stuff."

Betty listened carefully and did her best. He was generous with her, and told her she was quite all right when she added an unusually high leap, only to fall and sit awkwardly on the floor.

They worked for two hours on the dance. When they put it on at three o'clock the audience laughed heartily, and they got an encore and a bow, which pleased Hawkins immensely.

"Kid, you are good!" he announced when they left the stage. "Let yourself go the next time we are on. An lib some stuff of your own and we will make a hit this week. I'm no crab. I know I'm good, see, and I'm a good trouper. Live and let live, that's me!"

With this awkwardly-expressed encouragement, and the intoxication of applause, Betty entered into the spirit of this ridicule of the beautiful Greek dance. From time to time she introduced a few inconsistent clog steps and failures to do acrobatics, which amused the audience immensely. Hawkins patted her affectionately on the back when they left the stage for the last time.

Tuesday night Betty went to dance with Andy Adair again. On Wednesday night Hawkins said to her: "Ditch the Johns tonight, Brown, I want to talk business with you."

Betty was anxious to know what he wanted, but disappointed when they reached the stage door to find Harry Ford waiting. She introduced the two men, and explained that she was to have a business talk with Mr. Hawkins. She hoped Harry would come another time.

"How about tomorrow night?" he asked. Betty said she would be glad to see him, and smiled to herself that she was again attracting to her the men she liked. The smile became a bit grim when she realized that it was her public dancing and not herself which attracted them.

"Can you clown it?"

Hawkins took her to a white-tiled chair-arm lunch room, ordered some simple food, and began to talk business at once.

"How would you like to go on the road as my dancing partner?" he asked.

"Why, I had not thought about it," hesitated Betty. "Tell me just what you mean."

"You know I'm too good for this four-day stuff, but vaudeville has gone flooie. The movie houses have put it out of business. The only big money for a specialty is in the big reviews. I am getting only two hundred dollars a week for my act, but could get three if I had a partner. A booking agent told me so two or three days ago. If you are willing

AUDIENCE IS GIVEN LAUGH; WHAT MORE COULD ANYONE ASK?

Well, here we are again holding the pointer and tapping the desk for silence.

There are certain women in everyone's life which you remember forever and a day, so to speak. Therefore the memory of "See You Later," billed as a hilarious musical comedy in three acts, produced by local amateur talent under auspices of the American Legion Auxiliary at City Hall Theater Monday night, promises to linger for a long time for various reasons in the minds of those who witnessed the show.

Hilarious is an adjective at which we are apt to crawl under the table. Nevertheless, the play in some respects was hilariously funny when the acting was good, more hilarious when it was indifferent and most hilarious when it was bad.

Not that "See You Later" was without its weaknesses. It had them and, moreover, they were glaring. But all in all it was a comic entertainment. The audience was there to be amused no matter how this object was brought about and the spectators seemed to derive the maximum of pleasure from the offering which is after all what counts in the end.

When the show began to falter, which it did on more than one occasion, it was practically always led out of the doldrums by the appearance of Miss Mildred Mason, Arthur Hyman, Bob Owens, Archer Maxwell, John Sutton and several others. The play even without glacial treatment became very much alive and kicking and rather good entertainment.

Although a musical comedy, there is a great deal of plot to be followed so that you have to keep your wits about you. The story, though somewhat of a mixture, is at least original enough to keep a person guessing what the outcome will be.

In some ways, however, the production was a thoroughly enjoyable absurdity. While the list of players reads like a page from "Who's Who in the Local Amateur World," the nature of the casting offered opportunities for outstanding individual performances that were made the most of.

This was especially evident in the case of Bob Owens as "Jeff," a clever negro character, and Miss Mildred Mason as "Speedy," a smart ale office boy. Honors must go to them for superior performances in circus clowning roles.

Art Hyman ran a close second as "Sollie Goldstein," and proved himself admirably suited for this comedy role. It was a disappointment that so little was entrusted to Archie Maxwell, as "Mr. Milroy," a New York millionaire who can be funny without half trying. John Collins did well as "Donald McKay," a young business man and displayed a good voice; Roger Chambliss was suitable as "Percy Vere," a heckled Englishman, while the Misses Helen and Esther Ford played capably their respective parts as "Mary Milroy" and "Sally Forth," a frivolous creature.

Miss Edna Bailey gave a straight-forward performance of "Mayble Knott," a chewing gum stenographer, while John Sutton gave a ludicrous exhibition as "Nevermore Spotsom," a concealed detective.

There were three voices in the show, possessed by Miss Helen Ford, John Collins and Bob Owens. Between acts the audience was entertained with specialty numbers. Elwood Smith and Charles McPherson, blackface comedians, offered jokes and bits of dancing, while Miss Mason and Bob Owens gave popular songs which were well received.

The various choruses also contributed a good share to the entertainment. Following is the group personnel: work chorus—Marjorie Clark, Betty Rose, Baldwin, Marjorie Snyder, Elizabeth Huston, Margaret Clark, Marion Derrick, Susanne Guyton and Dorothy Jeffries.

Mary, Sally Chorus—Marguerite Reagle, Fern Bone, Evelyn Ary, Virginia Cross, Bob Griffith and Phil Sutton.

Broom Girls—Marjorie Morgan, Helen Jane Shaffer, Jessella Doggett, Kathryn Murspe, Genevieve Fuller, Ruth Turnbull, Marilyn Wilson, Janet Hamilton and Enid Ellis; romper chorus—Marjorie Powell, Margaret Clark, Cora Alice Powell, Evelyn Lampert, Della Lampert and Mabel Smith; Only, Only One Chorus—Marguerite Reagle, Fern Bone, Evelyn Ary, Virginia Cross, Bob Griffith and Phil Sutton.

The musical numbers included: "Goodbye Work," "This is Mary, This is Sally," "See You Later," "Sweep Your Troubles Away," "You're in Love and I'm in Love," "Girl of My Dreams," "No One Knows," "Old Man Sunshine," "Only, Only One" and "Bungalow of Dreams." Miss Quince Jones, director of the show with Bob Owens also gave an interpretation of the variety drag.

A fine pit orchestra was furnished by Prof. H. E. Seal and played under his direction, contributing more than ordinarily to the entertainment.

Tuesday night Betty went to dance with Andy Adair again. On Wednesday night Hawkins said to her: "Ditch the Johns tonight, Brown, I want to talk business with you."

Betty Brown takes up dancing to make her more attractive to men. She has a small success in local entertainments, and gets many men admirers as a result. Her parents die, leaving her without money. She takes up dancing professionally, and gets work in a moving picture house. During her trouble all her men friends seem to forget her except George Harris, a serious-minded boy who lived next door in the old days. The first night she dances at the moving picture house Andy Adair, a rich man's son, renews their acquaintance by waiting at the stage entrance for her. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Andy Adair came for Betty again on Tuesday night after the show, insisting that she go with him to a night club for dancing and something to eat. She enjoyed dancing with Andy and protested only feebly when he begged that they stay till the place closed at three o'clock. He kissed her again as he left her at her door.

Wednesday night the stage manager said: "Rehearsal at eleven tomorrow morning, Brown. Next week's stuff."

Betty was pleased, but tried not to show how much. She felt that if she acted as though she were a permanent at the theater he would also consider her so.

When they were all gathered on the stage Thursday morning he appeared with his script in his hand. "Comedy next week," he announced. "Brown, ever do Greek?"

"Yes."

"Got a costume?"

"Yes." Betty was frightened, for she did not care for Greek dancing and had taken it only because it was a part of the day's work at Selkoffs.

"Can you clown it?"

"I'm afraid I don't know what you mean," she said.

"Eccentric hoofs coming here next week who clowns Greek dancing. Nut, you know. Chases John bugs and all that. Wants a woman to work with him. She's got to know it well enough to clown it."

"Oh, yes, I can do that!" she laughed, getting his meaning.

"That's all for you. Meet him here Sunday morning at ten. Be on time, for he will likely show at eleven!" He waved her off the stage, and Betty went home to practice before her mirror an exaggerated Greek dance with the hope that she might please the visiting dancer.

She was on hand before ten o'clock on Sunday morning, more anxious than she had ever been. She was now to work as a dancing partner for a professional!

At exactly ten a sad-faced young man arrived on the stage and looked around. She was the only woman in sight, so he came over to her.

"I am Ted Hawkins, the dancer," said he. "You going to work for me?"

"Yes, Mr. Hawkins. I have heard of you so often, I hope I can please you."

"See me with 'The Stupidities.' I certainly killed 'em with that show, didn't I?"

"I'm sure you did! I know you are wonderful," Betty said as he was an egotist, and tried to please him.

"In my new act I use some of the same stuff which made me famous with 'The Stupidities.' All you have to do is just the regular Greek stuff, not too good, see? Stumble once in a while, and when you pose, do it awkwardly. Don't try to be funny, for I am the act, see? I don't want your attention distracted from my stuff."

Betty listened carefully and did her best. He was generous with her, and told her she was quite all right when she added an unusually high leap, only to fall and sit awkwardly on the floor.

They worked for two hours on the dance. When they put it on at three o'clock the audience laughed heartily, and they got an encore and a bow, which pleased Hawkins immensely.

"Kid, you are good!" he announced when they left the stage. "Let yourself go the next time we are on. An lib some stuff of your own and we will make a hit this week. I'm no crab. I know I'm good, see, and I'm a good trouper. With this awkwardly-expressed encouragement, and the intoxication of applause, Betty entered into the spirit of this ridicule of the beautiful Greek dance. From time to time she introduced a few inconsistent clog steps and failures to do acrobatics, which amused the audience immensely. A hawk in a patted her affectionately on the back when they left the stage for the last time.

Tuesday night Betty went to dance with Andy Adair again. On Wednesday night Hawkins said to her: "Ditch the Johns tonight, Brown, I want to talk business with you."

Betty was anxious to know what he wanted, but disappointed when they reached the stage door to find Harry Ford waiting. She introduced the two men, and explained that she was to have a business talk with Mr. Hawkins. She hoped Harry would come another time.

"How about tomorrow night?" he asked. Betty said she would be glad to see him, and smiled to herself that she was again attracting to her the men she liked. The smile became a bit grim when she realized that it was her public dancing and not herself which attracted them.

"Can you clown it?"

Hawkins took her to a white-tiled chair-arm lunch room, ordered some simple food, and began to talk business at once.

"How would you like to go on the road as my dancing partner?" he asked.

"Why, I had not thought about it," hesitated Betty. "Tell me just what you mean."

"You know I'm too good for this four-day stuff, but vaudeville has gone flooie. The movie houses have put it out of business. The only big money for a specialty is in the big reviews. I am getting only two hundred dollars a week for my act, but could get three if I had a partner. A booking agent told me so two or three days ago. If you are willing to work with me, taking the short end till you are as good as I am, I think we could team up."

"What is the short end?"

"I'd take what I am making now, two hundred, and you'd get the other hundred. This circuit is week stands and the jumps short. I got ten weeks now."

"I would like to try it," Betty had grown to like this dancer in spite of his crude way of expressing himself.

"All right," he said. "It's a go!" He reached out his hand, and they shook hands on it.

"I live right around the corner," he went on. "Let's go to my room and have a drink on it."

"But I don't drink!" laughed Betty.

"That's good! Women who drink get fat. You got to keep your shape if you are going to do bare-legged stuff. Don't start it. I don't drink a pint a month, but I want to have one on the new partnership. Come on around and take gingersale."

"But it is after twelve! I couldn't go to your room at this time of night."

"Why, it's a theatrical hotel, kid. They hardly get going before two or three."

"But I couldn't go to your room anyway," said Betty, positively. "I know it sounds trite, but I'm not that kind of a girl."

"Say, have you got the notion that we are going to waste money running around over the country paying for two rooms? He emphasized the last word but one.

"If we aren't to have two rooms I won't go with you," Betty half rose.

"Sit down!" He snapped out the words. "She obeyed without intending to. 'I ain't got smallpox nor nothing! You can't high hat me! I see you meeting them Johns at the stage door. They won't get you nothing. They buy you a sandwich and then collect afterwards.'"

"The men you have seen me with are old schoolmates who have known me all my life!" Betty spoke with dignity.

"Well, they won't get you nothing, anyhow!" he answered, doggedly. "If you want to get anywhere in this business you got to get yourself a partner and stick to him. If you are telling me the truth you got a lot of trouble coming to you. You better get yourself a job teaching school where the pupils are all little boys."

"You dancing women are so kind: gold-diggers who get bit as often as they bite and the kind that let the Johns alone and stick to their man, save their money, and get somewhere in the show business."

"You are not by any chance proposing to me, are you?" asked Betty. She knew she ought to be would be unable to fill her Dayton engagement or any other engagement for a week, at least.

She is travelling with her mother, Mrs. Lillian Grey and her manager is Nicholas Grey. In her divorce petition against D'Arcy, Mrs. Laura Guisti claimed that he squandered $10,000 of her mother's money. D'Arcy's marriage to Lita Grey Chaplin, who seems willing to turn from comedian to villain, has been discussed in Hollywood for some time, but no date has been set. Lita is said to have indicated that she does not expect to remain single long after D'Arcy is freed.

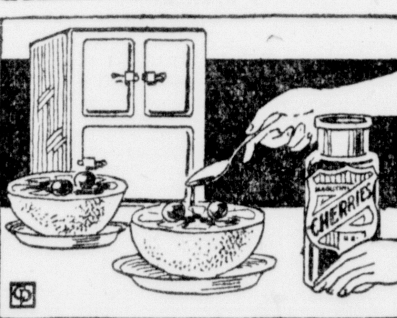

The death of Frank Keenan, veteran stage and screen star at Hollywood Sunday, removes one of the greatest characters of the world of mimicry.

Keenan, who was 70 years old, was born in Dubuque, Ia. and began his stage career at 22 in Lawrence, Mass. He first donned the grease paint as a student at Boston College in an amateur play, and went quickly to minor roles in the famous old Boston Museum Stock Co. However, he traced his professional career from his appearance in Lawrence in 1880 in support of the veteran, Joseph Proctor.

Keenan was the dour Cassius in "Julius Caesar" and played later the befuddled Rip Van Winkle. He succeeded to major stardom in "Hearts of Oak," "McKenna's Flirtation," "A Texas Steer" and "The Warrens of Virginia" and for many years his name topped the showbills.

Before 1900 he had combined directing with his roles and he

HISTORY OF WILBERFORCE TOLD AT FOUNDERS' DAY PROGRAM

The principal program rendered by Wilberforce University in celebrating what is known as "Founders' Day," was given Sunday by the Founders' Day Committee in Jones' Auditorium, New Shorter Hall Building.

In the morning a special sermon was delivered by the Rev. L. C. Ridley, pastor of Trinity A. M. E. Church, who spoke on the history of the university. He said the first school was started in 1843 near Columbus, and was known as "Union Seminary." In 1853, a resolution was introduced in an annual conference by the Methodist Episcopal Church at Hillsboro; providing for a school to be maintained for the education of colored people. In 1853 Bishop Daniel A. Payne purchased what was known as "Tawa-wa Springs," a well known summer resort a few miles east of Xenia and started Wilberforce University. Today it is one of the leading schools supported by the colored people of the United States.

The principal address of the day was given by Dr. Thomas Elsa Jones, president of Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn. Dr. Jones was greeted by a large audience, many coming from the nearby cities and towns.

ing of ice and snow brought the Mahoning River up rapidly. The water was 3.5 feet above normal today.

The Columbus weather bureau reported flood stage on the Scioto at La Rue, Prospect and Belle-point. The Olentangy was at flood stage at Delaware while the Walhonding River was flooding about fifteen miles north of Coshocton.

Flood stage will probably be reached at Coshocton during the day.

Flood warnings were issued today by the weather bureau for Circleville, Chillicothe and other points south of Columbus.

Another rainstorm was expected today to follow the downpour which flooded streets and cellars and halted traffic in Columbus last night.

The Buck Creek Valley comprising Springfield and vicinity was flooded today also.

Buck Creek which flows through the heart of the city overflowed its banks and much water entered industrial plants forcing them to close temporarily.

Scores of persons living near the stream were taken from their homes in boats, but none was reported injured.

The city was without electric power for an hour.

The city faced a possible water shortage when two big pumps at the waterworks plant were put out of commission. Only one small pump was in operation.

At Toledo, city officials taking advantage of a sudden drop in the level of the ice-clogged, swollen Maumee River, were planning to take steps toward breaking up the fifteen-inch coating of ice in the Toledo Harbor.

Two steel tugs have been chartered to break the ice as far as Lake Erie in the hopes of averting flood waters when the general movement of the ice begins.

A northeast wind had retarded the current today, causing a drop of ten inches in the river level. Flood stage has not been reached at any point, although the surface water has threatened to overflow in the upper reaches.

Seven families were marooned in their homes today when a small creek in the western part of Toledo overflowed its banks and inundated two city blocks.

The Tuscarawas River was rising rapidly near New Philadelphia.

The New Philadelphia-Newcomerstown and New Philadelphia-Canton roads were inundated. A further rise would cut off traffic on these highways, county authorities said.

Black Fork and Town Creek in the vicinity of Ashland threatened roads.

At Dayton many trains and traction cars were reported late and in some cases interurban service was abandoned.

Detroit-Cincinnati buses reported at Dayton that they were forced to make two detours of thirty miles each to avoid flood waters.

At the Lockington Dam of the Big Miami, north of Piqua, water was reported twenty-five feet high and rising. The depth at the conservatory dam, at Germantown, was reported at forty-four feet at 3 a. m. and still rising.

Cars on the D. H. and D. traction line were running from Dayton only to Middletown, because of a bridge washout between that city and Hamilton.

At Middletown two paper mills were forced to close as water rose. At Amanda, near Middletown, a section of the Dixie Highway was flooded by Dick's Creek, and homes there and in Exello, nearby were flooded.

Between Troy and Tippicanoe City many autos were reported stranded and rail and road traffic between Dayton and Xenia was seriously delayed.

The villages of Oakwood and Belmont, Dayton suburbs, were reported without light last night.

The lower, or northeast section of Springfield, was hardest hit by waters of Buck Creek.

Persons living in this section were removed from their homes by police with the aid of boats.

Between fifty and sixty policemen are engaged in the flood work. The flood would have done greater damage had not Buck Creek been dredged and straightened through the city last summer.

YOU CAN'T DYE with Good Intentions

You can get results—after a fashion—with any old dye; but to do work you are proud of takes real anilines. That's why we put them in Diamond Dyes. They contain from three to five times more than other dyes on the market! Cost more to make? Surely. But you get them for the same price as other dyes.

Next time you want to dye, try them. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare the results. Note the absence of that re-dyed look; of streaking or spotting. See that they take none of the life out of the cloth. Observe how the colors keep their brilliance through wear and washing. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or rest silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. Remember this when you buy. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

"I am strong for Luckies."

John Gilbert Celebrated Screen Star

"Motion picture actors are under a great strain—they need the comforting qualities of a good cigarette. That is why most of us smoke Lucky Strike. The marvelous toasted flavor of Luckies brings complete enjoyment and relaxation but does not hurt the throat or wind. I am strong for Luckies—they are the 'stars' of the cigarette picture. I would rather have a Lucky after a meal than rich pastries or desserts."

JOHN GILBERT

The modern common sense way—reach for a Lucky instead of a fattening sweet. Everyone is doing it—men keep healthy and fit, women retain a trim figure. Lucky Strike, the finest tobaccos, skillfully blended, then toasted to develop a flavor which is a delightful alternative for that craving for fattening sweets.

Toasting frees Lucky Strike from impurities. 20,679 physicians recognize this when they say Luckies are less irritating than other cigarettes. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in Cigarette smoking to the improvement in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This surely confirms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet.

HISTORY OF WILBERFORCE TOLD AT FOUNDERS' DAY PROGRAM

The principal program rendered by Wilberforce University in celebrating what is known as "Founders' Day," was given Sunday by the Founders' Day Committee in Jones' Auditorium, New Shorter Hall Building.

In the morning a special sermon was delivered by the Rev. L. C. Ridley, pastor of Trinity A. M. E. Church, who spoke on the history of the university. He said the first school was started in 1843 near Columbus, and was known as "Union Today it is one of the leading schools supported by the colored people of the United States.

The principal address of the day was given by Dr. Thomas Elsa Jones, president of Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn. Dr. Jones was greeted by a large audience, many coming from the nearby cities and towns. After a short musical program, the speaker was introduced by President G. H. Jones. His subject was "Personality and Self-Control." He touched upon education in the early centuries and spoke of Francis Voltaire and the noted Englishman, William Wilberforce, who did much to bring about reforms along the lines of education, and then of the modern trend of education of the present age. He elaborated to some extent on the work of William Wilberforce, for whom Wilberforce University was named.

From 5:30 to 6:30 a reception was given by President and Mrs. G. H. Jones at their residence in honor of Dr. Thomas Elsa Jones and Annie M. Pope Turnbo Malone, founder of Poro College in St. Louis, Mo.; who was the principal speaker of the evening exercises. The reception was attended by faculty members and their wives and visitors from Cincinnati, Columbus, Dayton and Springfield. In the receiving line were: President and Mrs. G. H. Jones, Dr. Jones, Mrs. Malone, Mrs. McMurray of Chicago.
